

Dear Members,

Hearty and Warm Greetings from TNOA!

I wish to appreciate the entire editorial team for their relentless hard work and congratulate them for indexing JOJS. I am sure their sustained efforts will take our journal to greater heights.

In this era of modern science and technology, orthopedic practice is undergoing various transitions and reformations that are poised to embrace a new height. JOJS will be the connecting bridge among orthopedic community.

I invite you all in the capacity of individual scholar, group of researchers, teaching institutions, and organizations like government/non-government to promote research, scientific writing, and its publication in JOJS for global visibility of your good work and its rightful recognition.

Modern scientific research in collaboration with artificial intelligence can significantly increase the accuracy and precision in conceptualizing the newer ideas and its application to overcome different challenges in the future.

Long live TNOA!
